	Congestion @ Trader Joes/QFC, questions whether parking is result of using as a park and ride			Staff is aware of a variety of concerns in this area and recognizes that a variety of activities are increasing as this portion of Downtown continues to grow. For example, recent addition of markets and other popular retail establishments contribute to increased parking demand. As well, residential growth in the immediate vicinity has resulted in increased pedestrian and bicycle trips.
Block Watch				The existing Neighborhood Watch program is available to community groups interested in forming a collective network. Staff plans to include links to the Neighborhood Watch program on the neighborhood webpage and Facebook. Staff plans to follow up with
		Additional street lighting		neighborhood interest as resources allow to inventory and evaluate specific locations.
	Bikes on sidewalks - post on City web the allowance or code - help make clear			During 2011, the City hosted a bicycle safety and ownership series. This, along with provisions in the RMC and Zoning Code will continue to help maintain and improve Redmond's bikable infrastructure.
	Vegetation management along ped corridors
				Staff suggests additional follow up with the neighborhood to perform a walking audit to inventory specific locations where pedestrian activity may be impacted and to consider the ownership, needs, and code provisions of respective corridors.
			Locked fences on ped connections
	Ped timing at Redmond Way/QFC center			A previous delay was in place during construction and had been restored to standard timing once construction completed.
