

Cottage Housing

In 2002, the City adopted cottage housing regulations to provide a new housing choice in Redmond. A cottage is a single-family home of no more than 1,500 square feet. Cottages include small yards, but are also situated around a community open space, which functions as an extended yard, recreation area, and community gathering space. At some Redmond developments, parking is provided either behind, below, or apart from the cottages themselves, allowing the front yards to serve as places for living.