

vegetation and re-clearing of the area later when her father was injured, and ultimately the direct replacement of the existing broken pipe to its pre-existing condition. That eyewitness narrative fully and credibly explains running surface water, and there remains no credible information undermining the facts, data, and expert analysis provided by the Applicant's biologist or the Holmgren family.

Again, the Applicant has carried any reasonably conceivable burden of establishing there is no critical area on the site, and there is no data or analysis in the record that would remotely carry the burden of proving to the contrary. No additional information is required, and the Application is ripe for prompt decision.

Thank you for your efforts on this matter. We continue to look forward to receiving the Technical Committee's decision on the application, and reiterate our request that the decision be issued without further delay.

Sincerely Yours,
