HOMELESSNESS

We recognize that each person has a unique journey and deserves to be treated with respect and compassion. We understand that ending homelessness requires a collective effort from all segments of our community including government, nonprofit partners, faith-based organizations, and businesses. The City continues to connect with individuals, expand relationships, align strategies, and invest in services to address homelessness.

CONNECT unsheltered individuals to resources

The City has a dedicated, full-time outreach specialist who coordinates with businesses, nonprofits, Redmond Police Department, and the broader community. Services are provided through direct outreach by meeting people where they are and during drop-in hours at accessible locations.

EXPAND partnerships and collaborations

Partnerships that improve outcomes for individuals experiencing homelessness are essential. The City partners with the Housing Connector Program to engage with landlords around King County to house individuals with barriers, such as poor credit or past evictions.

ALIGN with regional strategies and best practices for addressing homelessness

The City advocates for regional policies and solutions that are responsive to local challenges and trends in our communities and supports King County Regional Homelessness Authority in implementing these strategies.

INVEST in a continuum of services including prevention, shelter, and stability

In 2023, the City will invest more than $2.5 million in a broad range of human services, with nearly 50% of its investments prioritizing programs that serve people experiencing or at risk of homelessness.
